A TALKING DOG.

He Can Pronounce Words and Sing the Scale Fairly Well.

San Francisco Cal . Oakland has a talking dog. It is a dog that has no claims to any fine points of breeding, and if met on the street would, perhaps, receive no attention. The dog's exact pedigree is one of the unknowns, but that is no matter. It talks, and that is enough. In appearance the dog is a mixture of grey hound, setter and an Irish terrier, but with the points of the first breed most prominent. It stands about fifteen inches in height and is shiny black, with hair just long enough to be inclined to ourl. Mrs. H. M. Hughes, of 765 Campbell street, is the owner of the dog, and the mistress and the animal are almost as inseparable as the Siamese twins. "Yes, the dog talks right along to me," said Mrs. Hughes to a reporter. "Come here, Frank," she said, calling the animal into the parlor. Frank came trotting in with his care and tail up, and a wonderful look of intelligence in his face. "Do you want to go out, Frank?" asked the mistress.

Hughes's lap, and squatted on his haunches. The question was repeated, and Frank elevated his head, and opened his mouth to about the fullest extent, and answered as follows: "Ow wan t'go-ow." The word came with remarkable clearness, and without any stretch of the image

Frank, playfully, jumped into Mra instion, could be distinctly understood at "I want to go out." These words the dog repeated several "Who do you love, Frank!" was next asked of the dog.

The question was repeated several times before Frank answered. "Ow wow, ma ma," "Do you love pa pa?" The dog repeated the words "pa pa" several times and then came out with: "Ow wow, pa, pa." Mrs. Hughes then commenced to talk to Frank as a mother would to a child and the dog repeated words here and there after his mistress. "I am alone nearly all day," said Mrs. Hughes, "and to relieve the monotony of being alone I commenced to talk to the dog when he was quite a puppy.

"One day I left him on a chair and went out of the room. He was too young to attempt to jump from the chair, and to call me he commenced to make peculiar sounds as if trying to talk. "I was astonished at this caper of the puppy, and after that when I would talk to him he would try to repeat the sounds I made. Frank and I carry on many a conversation when we are alone, and he frequently says whole sentences after me which can be recognized, but he never retains them, and can seldom be induced to say them over. Whenever he wants to go out he goes to the door and utters the words, 'I want to go out.' He has learned to understand what those sounds mean and can intelligently use them." Frank can not only talk, but he has a good ear for music and can sing fairly well. He does not sing like other dogs-start up and howl and keep it up as long as the music lasts. Frank will follow the notes up and down the scale and have as much regard for time as a singing master. Frank's human instincts are particularly well developed. If his mistress does not come and let him out when he asks he will pull at her skirts and lead her over to the door to be opened, or if he attempts totell her anything she does not understand he will lead her to what he is talking about and endeavor by some capers to make his wishes as plain as possible to his "mother," as Mrs. Hughes calls herself. The dog was a year old last July and he becomes more proficient in talking daily. Some of those

Many nice delicacies are often spoiled by the abominable flavorings used in them, and generally their having been spoiled is attributed to the cook. Now if
